388: How product leaders work well with legal resources

Ryan Lewendon

Application Questions

1. What has been your experience working with the legal department in your organization?
2. What would you like to do differently in your interactions with legal?
3. What resources does legal offer that would be helpful to you on your current or next product project?

Actions to Take

What to Do Now

- Consider how you could present your proposal to your in-house legal counsel. Be sure to mention the downsides and how you'll mitigate them.
- Begin forming a relationship with lawyers in your in-house legal counsel. Take them out for a drink and talk about your product in a low-stress setting.

What to Do Soon

- Give your in-house legal counsel an early heads-up on your next project.
- Strategically choose a domain expert when you're selecting your external legal counsel for your next project.
